

This project involved transforming a bland 1970's house into a traditional styled family home. Externally, new sandstone cladding, timber windows and standing seam metal roofing were installed. Internally, stained oak flooring and timber panels were used to give the house a restrained classic feel. This is a fine example of an outdated home being upgraded to fit today's lifestyle.

